Holland, Ohio

Tronair, Inc. ("Tronair"), a portfolio company of Golden Gate Capital is proud to announce that Eagle Tugs, a Tronair company, has successfully moved into 1 Air Cargo Parkway East in Swanton, Ohio. Our new state of the art facility will become the home of all Tronair portfolio companies and within a week of Eagle's relocation, the first production unit came out of the facility.

Eagle Tugs has been a member of the Tronair family for nearly two years allowing us to offer a complete suite of GSE products. Since the Eagle purchase, we have also acquired Columbus Jack/Regent, the largest supplier of hydraulic jacks to the US Defense Department, and Datco Media, the home of EBis cloud based software for GSE fleet management.

"We are thrilled to welcome Eagle to our new facility. It is an exciting first step as we move the manufacturing companies in the Tronair portfolio under one roof at what will be a fantastic state of the art manufacturing facility." Harley Kaplan, CEO and President of Tronair.

About DatcoMedia:

In order to meet the demands of the FAA and customers and maintain a library of records for parts and equipment purchased and handle warranty claims, a proprietary software was developed. On the shop floor, the mechanics needed an easier process to perform the repairs to the aircraft as well as to record the work. Today, EBis is used by a wide array of users from multiple location jet centers to engine shops to small single location operations from the United States to Europe. It is used to manage the ground support operations of Southwest Airlines, Delta Airlines, JetBlue, and Virgin Australia. It is used also by third party maintenance providers to help provide first class service to GSE customers. www.datcomedia.com
